

AHMF Motoring Festival 21-26 March

Almost exactly 12 months ago when COVID-19 caused a nation-wide lockdown, there was a road trip of a lifetime taking place. Five years in the planning, the week long Australian Historic Motoring Federation's festival in Albury was preceded by another week-long CMC-organised South Coast tour, then over the mountains to Cooma and onto Albury.

You might remember 'The Mouse That Roared' article in the May-June edition of Minor Torque last year, describing the two days that the tour lasted before you-know-what hit. Well, almost 12 months to the day, the AHMF tour went ahead. Out of the original 294 cars for the 2020 festival, 97 made it to Albury the second time around.

Space is tight in this edition of Minor Torque so a longer report will appear in the May-June issue. In brief: there was just so much to do, a lot of fun to be had, many people to meet, friendships made, and yes, much food to eat.

Entrant specific badges

There were four day-long road tours radiating out from Albury-Wodonga, with back roads used in place of expressways whenever possible; perfect for old cars.

Credit to the main organiser, Christine Stevens from Queensland, and her understanding husband Geoff - an awesome effort. The 154-page book for each was a massive undertaking alone. More in the next issue of Minor Torque. Owen & Indra Sinden

Some wine may have been consumed for research purposes only...

It felt like 'Land Of The Giants' next to the Dodges

